

Scholar in U.S. Energy Policy and Its Social Impact

The Honors College The University of Oklahoma

The Honors College of the University of Oklahoma invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor or tenured associate professor whose research focuses on U.S. energy policy and its social impact. The successful applicant will be the Donald Keith Jones endowed professor in the Honors College. Applicants' scholarship may have either a historical or contemporary focus. Applications are encouraged from scholars who employ critical, interdisciplinary approaches to topics such as the history of energy policy in the U.S., the relationship between U.S. energy policy and foreign affairs, the environmental consequences of energy policy, and the social impact of energy policy implementation in the past and present. Candidates from any discipline in the social sciences or humanities will be considered. Preference will be given to applicants who are committed to interdisciplinary scholarship and teaching and show promise of pedagogical and scholarly excellence. The successful candidate will join an interdisciplinary faculty focused on American Studies, broadly defined. The appointment will be in the Honors College (with tenure given there) and with an affiliation to an appropriate department on campus.

Candidates must have a completed Ph.D. by the start of the appointment (August 2008).

Applications, including a cover letter, curriculum vitae, three letters of reference, and a chapter-length writing sample should be sent to Dr. Rich Hamerla, Chair, Donald Keith Jones Position Search Committee, Honors College, David L. Boren Hall, 1300 Asp Ave., University of Oklahoma, Norman, OK 73019-6061. No electronic applications will be accepted.

The committee will begin reviewing applications on October 15, 2007 and will continue the process until the position is filled. The University of Oklahoma is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, committed to cultural diversity and compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Women and minorities are strongly encouraged to apply.
